(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

Chicago, Oct. 7 (A.P.).—The accompaniment of all the tumult and shouting that goes with America's annual baseball carnival, the boys will go out on the field tomorrow to substitute fast balls and baseballs for oratory and argument in the battle for the 1929 championship of the world.

The Philadelphia Athletics and Chicago Cubs, rivals again for the richest of the game's prizes after a lapse of nineteen years, come to grips in the opening game with fair weather and a spectacular fight expected from the outset between two fast, hard-hitting and aggressive ball clubs.

Unless there is a last-minute switch, Charley Root, foremost flinger of the National League, will pitch for the Cubs, against Big George Earnshaw, of the A's, in a struggle between fast-ball right-handers.

Root was definitely selected today by Manager Joe McCarthy as the opening game choice over Pat Malone, another rugged right-hander. Connie Mack, 67-year-old chairman of the A's, kept his twisting smile to himself as he arrived this afternoon with his team, but the experts considered Earnshaw the logical choice. There was, however, the prospect that Mack might switch to Robert Moses Grove, his famous left-hander, or so far creep up the experts as to send either old Jack Quinn or Howard Egan to the box.

The full-throated roar of 50,000 fans is expected to surround in Wrigley Field for the opening game of the series that furnishes the climax to the greatest baseball season Chicago has ever known.

Speculators Troubled.

So keen was the enthusiasm that hundreds of fans were in line tonight outside the park, prepared for the all-night vigil before the bleacher seats go on sale around 8 a. m. tomorrow. Scores had begun to hold their seats more than 24 hours before.

Umpire Bill Klein, dean of the National League staff, cries "Let's go" at 3:00 p. m. A Chicagoan occupied the first place in the bleacher line, with a Philadelphia customer identified as a tourist from Rensselaer, N. Y.

All reserved seats have been sold, with speculators having difficulty doing any substantial business, even at such fancy prices as $50 for a single game ticket. The "gate" for the first day, as well as for the second game here, is expected to exceed $200,000, with a million-dollar series assured if the issue comes only to five games. The best guess is that it will go six.

Pregame developments today, aside from the inpouring of fans, officials and notables, centered chiefly about the late arrival of the Athletics, the definite selection of Root to pitch for the Cubs and a tendency to shorten the odds which have made the American League champions from the start.

Wagers, hitherto largely based on quotations of 7 to 5 on the A's, dropped to around 6 to 5 with a rally in Cub stock. Because of the uncertainty over the A's initial pitching choice, the opening game betting was mostly "even money and take your pick."

Root Definite Choice.

Root is declared to be in prime condition for the getway. The 30-year-old right-hander, who came in baseball ranks ten years ago from the Rolling Mills of Middletown, Ohio, has a world of stuff, speed and a "wrinkle ball" that he made famous in winning 26 games for the Cubs in 1927. That big season was supposed to have snapped Root's stamina. He had an off year in 1928, but came back brilliantly this year to finish strong with a record of 19 victories against 6 defeats, enabling him to beat out his teammate, Guy Bush, for the ranking National League twirling position.

Root at times has had an unhappy tendency to experience one bad inning in games in which his pitching otherwise has been unblemished. He hopes to avoid this flint tomorrow, for an inning's outbreak might very well

Divorce Granted Wife Of Bainbridge Colby

Former Secretary of State Deserted Her, Mate Declares.

Reno, Nev., Oct. 7 (A.P.).—Mrs. Nathalie Sedgwick Colby, author, was granted a divorce here this afternoon from Bainbridge Colby, former Secretary of State in the Wilson Cabinet and also a member of the Shipping Board and Emergency Fleet Corporation.

A property settlement of some sort was made between the couple, but it was not made a part of the court record other than mention that such had been made. It is understood it is not a large one.

Mrs. Colby testified to follow the allegations in her complaint. She said they were married at Stockbridge, Mass., June 20, 1893, and had three children, all of age. In March, 1923, Mrs. Colby testified, her husband deserted her. He came back for four days in 1924, she said, but did not remain any longer. Colby was represented by counsel, but no testimony was offered in his behalf.

Mrs. Colby, at the time she filed her action last week, said she had something to tell the newspapermen today. Her statement was:

"Mr. Colby is great in history as a great Secretary of State. There is nothing left for me to say."

Immediately upon expiration of the time limit set for grand jurors to testify, at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon, letters are to be sent to each of the 70 witnesses who appeared before the board yesterday, to be sent to each of the grand jurors, asking them to lay before the board any and all facts they may have pertinent to the charges made against the police officials.

This decision followed lengthy conferences yesterday between the commissioners and the board of inquiry, which consists of Corporation Counsel William W. Brice and Maj. D. A. Davison, assistant engineer commissioner, appointed to ascertain facts in connection with the charge that two police officials had ignored, suppressed or colored evidence in the McPherson case.

Six Witnesses Scheduled Today.

The first action of the board after its appointment last week was to request 24 witnesses to appear before it. Of these, 23 were the grand jury members, while the other was Policeman Robert J. Allen, whose criticism of the police led the grand jury to charge laxity and misconduct against Inspector William S. Shelby and Lieut. Edward Kelly, who subsequently were removed from the Detective Bureau and transferred, at equal rank, to desk duty.

Six of these grand jurors are scheduled to appear today, the board having designated a specific time for each, and allotted 30 minutes for the testimony of each. In calling the 70 persons who testified before the grand jury, however, it is not planned to arrange any such schedule, but to allow each witness to appear at the time found most convenient by the witness.

Only two witnesses appeared, of the six called yesterday, making four to appear of eighteen scheduled since the inquiry was opened last Friday. One witness yesterday was Charles E. Nichols, a grand juror, who declared that there is no foundation for the charges made against Shelby and Kelly. Nichols told the board he was one of the ten grand jurors who had voted for a verdict of acquittal.

Neither Bride nor Davison would discuss the situation beyond a brief statement in which they said: "Invitations are still out for six members of the grand jury to appear before the special board appointed to consider the charges made by members of the grand jury. Until that time limit appears it would be improper and inappropriate to make any report or recommendation to the commissioners."

While both Bride and Davison declined positively to discuss the situation, it was learned that earlier in the day they had conferred at length with Merritt O. Chance, foreman of the grand jury, and with J. H. Bait, a member of the jury, and that during

Dancer Dons Scarlet Silks She Swears Pantages Tore

Eunice Pringle Is Dismissed From Stand in Los Angeles Attack Trial After She Tells Intimate Details of Her Life.

Los Angeles, Calif., Oct. 7 (A.P.).—Three hours of defense and prosecution examination of Miss Eunice Pringle, 17-year-old dancer and university student, came to an end late today and the girl was dismissed from the witness stand, ending the appearance of the State's principal witness in the trial of a statutory charge against Alexander Pantages.

Miss Pringle was forced to parade before the jurors in the scarlet ensemble she wore at the time of an alleged attack by the theatrical magnate in his private office.

The defense conducted a searching examination of the girl into intimate details of her life since last March and up to August 9, the day on which she claims Pantages attacked her.

Throughout the morning she appeared in a modest blue dress, but at the beginning of the afternoon session the defense forced her to don the scarlet, more attractive ensemble she wore the day of the alleged attack. In it she paraded before the jurors at the behest of Pantages' attorneys.

Investigation Started by Laxity Charge to Be Halted.

At least one more grand juror has announced his intention to testify before the special board appointed by the District Commissioners, at the request of the grand jury, to investigate charges made by the grand jury that police officials had mishandled the early stages of the McPherson murder mystery.

Immediately upon expiration of the time limit set for grand jurors to testify, at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon, letters are to be sent to each of the 70 witnesses who appeared before the board yesterday, to be sent to each of the grand jurors, asking them to lay before the board any and all facts they may have pertinent to the charges made against the police officials.

EMBARGO PUT ON NEW YORK'S PRODUCE CARS

Six Railroads Place Ban on All Perishable Commodities.

TRUCKMEN'S STRIKE IS CAUSE OF ACTION

$6,000,000 in Merchandise Already Held at Piers and in Yards.

SHIPMENTS ON WAY WILL BE REROUTED

Action Comes in Spite of Prediction of Night Agreement.

New York, Oct. 7 (A.P.).—An embargo on shipments of all perishable produce to New York was laid down tonight, effective at midnight, by the New York Central, Pennsylvania, Central of New Jersey, Lehigh Valley, Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, and Erie Railroads. The action was taken because of the congestion in freight terminals resulting from the strike of 2,000 market truck drivers.

It occurred despite an earlier announcement by Miss Frances Perkins, State labor commissioner, who said Ward W. Smith, secretary of the Fruit and Produce Trade Association, informed her an agreement probably would be reached tonight to end the strike.

Miss Perkins transmitted Smith's announcement to Acting Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, who then authorized her to cancel arrangements he had made for a meeting of interested parties at his home tonight in an effort to settle the labor dispute.

Pennsylvania Acts First.

The embargo action was announced first by the Pennsylvania Railroad, followed quickly by the Erie, New York Central and the other New York lines. Shipping agents in cities throughout the country were notified by the railroads to accept no further shipments for this city.

It was announced that all cars containing the class of goods banned and moving toward New York from points east of Chicago at the time the embargo becomes effective, will be rerouted to Boston, Philadelphia or back to Chicago. Shipments west of Chicago intended for New York will be held on sidings, refrigerated and returned to the shippers.

Perishable produce has been arriving in New York in a steady stream since the strike became effective Saturday. As a result more than 3,000 cars, loaded with perishable fruits and vegetables valued at $6,000,000 have accumulated at the various freight terminals.

Conferences Are Held.

Several conferences were held today by commission merchants and representatives of the Market Truckmen's Association in an effort to end the strike. The Truckmen's Association, which declared it can not afford to meet the demands of its drivers for an eight-hour day and time and a half for overtime, is negotiating for higher cartage rates from the commission men in order that it can pay the wage scale sought by the union.

Union officials had no part in the conferences. They have announced that the strike would continue until their requests are granted.

Market men said no shortage of fruit or vegetables would be felt here for three or four days. Warehouses were well stocked when the strike was threatened, they said, adding that there should be no advance in retail prices until an actual famine occurs.

Spillage Is Obligated.

The $6,000,000 worth of perishable produce now held up in railroad yards or at piers is in no danger of spoiling, commission men pointed out, due to refrigeration. The only loss at present resulting from the strike is through inactivity of the market auctions.

Seven hundred East River market stevedores went on a sympathy strike

M'DONALD BRINGS PLEA FOR PEACE TO SENATE IN ELOQUENT ADDRESS

Underwood & Underwood. Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald expressed the hope for closer relationships between Great Britain and the United States yesterday in a brief speech in the House of Representatives. Beside him, seated, is Representative John Q. Tilson, Republican floor leader, who introduced the prime minister.

"Parity?" He Exclaims in Talk to Legislators. "Take It!"

PEACE THAT WILL ENDURE IS HIS GOAL

"Can Be No War," He Says in Address, "If We Do Our Duty."

SENATORS IMPRESSED BY BRITON'S SPEECH

Conversations With Hoover Result in Invitations to Five Powers.

By CARLISLE BARGENON.

Premier Ramsay MacDonald yesterday appeared before the United States Senate to plead his cause of world peace.

It was the first time in history that a British premier has ever appeared before that body and it was the first time that any man with such a mission as his has ever carried it direct to the body that, after all, has the final word.

"There can be no war," he declared. "If, more, it is absolutely impossible, if you and we do our duty in making the peace pact effective, that any section of our arms, whether land, or sea, or air, can ever again come into hostile conflict."

"Parity?" he exclaimed, "take it—without reserve, heaped up and flowing over. That is one of the results of this visit. Another result of the visit is that we have come to understand each other."

Read to Understanding.

"Ah, senators," he continued, "as long as you conduct your negotiations by correspondence over thousands of miles of sea you will never understand each other at all in these democratic days, when heart appeals to heart, as often as deep appeals to deep. Let us advance, personally, personal contact, exchange of views by the lip, sitting at two sides of a fireplace, as it was my great privilege to do this week-end with your President—these things are to be as important as anything else in laying the foundation of an enduring peace all over the world."

Presidents have appeared at times before joint sessions of Congress to deliver their annual message and then again in the bloody chapters of the Nation's history to urge it to declare war, but they have confined their peace urges to public utterances that might be called appeals to the country rather than to the Congress itself.

It was as if Hoover in his rapid flashing retreat conversation with the British premier had said of the Senate: "That's a hard bunch. You go up and see what you can do with them."

And the British premier did. "I thought it was a very happy speech," declared Senator Borah, who must needs be in a happy mood before any treaty that finally results from the visit of the British premier and the forthcoming five-power naval parity, can be ratified.

Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader, said: "Premier MacDonald impressed the Senate with his earnest desire for an agreement between the United States and Great Britain with respect to naval parity. No other arrangement is practicable or possible. His remarks indicate readiness to recognize in preference the equality of the United States with Great Britain in sea power, which is all that our people ask or desire."

Said Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, chairman of the Senate military committee: "I think that to have the prime minister reiterate in this country that Great Britain wishes to grant party to us make possible a limitation of armaments which may serve to relieve the peoples of the two countries of a burden which is growing intolerable and thus lead to a general world-wide self-restraint which will be a blessing to all humanity.

That was the way these senators felt. As to how the appeal affected the intractable Senator Moore, of New Hampshire, and Senator Hale, chairman of the Senate Naval Affairs committee, leader of the big Navy group, well, they were guests last night at the White House dinner given to the premier and his daughter, Miss Isabel.

It was significant that the visiting Briton should come before the Senate and make his offer of party and express his fervent hope of world peace. It is the Senate that is more practical or more stubborn, according to the viewpoint, in these military limitations moves. It is the Senate, it is believed, that is responsible for Hoover abandoning any idea of cutting down on the number of cruisers authorized under the fifteen cruiser program. Represented upon, instead, the building of five or seven, according to the final agreement, smaller cruisers in addition.

First Spoke to House

The premier spoke first to the House but to that body his was but a spoken call. The House is taking it easy while the Senate wrestles with the tariff bill, so hardly more than 100 members were present. Representative Bradley, of Oregon, held the chair. Majority Leader Tilton was on hand, however, to receive the visitor and he introduced him to the Chamber. Before that body the premier simply expressed his appreciation of the reception he had received. Then he turned over to the Senate, accompanied by Representative Stephen G. Perry, chairman of the House foreign affairs committee.

Every senator on the floor applauded as the visitor entered the chamber. Several of them knew him, having met him before in their travels in Europe or on the occasion of his previous visit to this country. Senator Frank Johnson, of California, one of the irreconcilable was the only senator that noticeably did not frequently applaud his remarks but whether that is significant or not is a matter for the Senate to decide. Senator Borah, who insists that freedom of the seas must be agreed upon as essential to any effective naval limitations, was particularly frequent. MacDonald is to see him tomorrow at the British Embassy to talk over this pet of the Idaho senator.

Mrs. Gann in Gallery

Mrs. Dolly Gann, sister of the Vice President, was in the gallery with Mrs. William Howard Taft. The former was a guest at the White House dinner last night but she had previously waived any seating in the Chamber. The Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court and Mrs. Taft were also invited guests, but because of the Chief Justice's invariable refusal to go out at night, they were not present. In their stead was Justice McReynolds.

There was considerable speculation as to the premier's statement before the Senate that party "is one of the results of this visit."

The understanding and the emphasized statement of official quarters has been that this country and Great Britain had reached as near an agreement on naval parity as possible several weeks ago; that the disparity was of such small moment that it would not be a subject of conversation between the premier and Hoover.

Before the premier left England the difference between the two countries was that the British had 21 8-inch gun cruisers or 10,000 tons each and 15 cruisers of the Omaha or 6-inch gun class. This would make a total tonnage of 315,000 tons. Great Britain wanted this country to hold down to 18 large cruisers and a tonnage of 300,000.

Details Probably Not Discussed.

This was considered close enough to an agreement for the two countries to go into a conference with the other powers. It is questionable that MacDonald intended to convey the impression that the small disparity had been removed and that the two countries had come to complete agreement. It is exceedingly doubtful that he and Hoover have gotten down to such detailed discussion at all.

Yet there has been a lot talked about since the President and MacDonald first got together. Upon their return from the Rapaun fishing retreat yesterday morning they issued a joint statement:

"We have frankly reviewed all questions that might give rise to friction between our peoples. Grati-fying progress has been made and the conversations are continuing."

The party returned from Rapaun shortly before 11 o'clock. Hoover left his British companion in the White House to rest and get ready for his appearance before Congress. At 1 o'clock they had lunch together. Then the premier was permitted to make himself at home while Hoover went over to the executive offices to attend to some business. His only caller in the afternoon, though, was Secretary of State Stimson. MacDonald spent the afternoon working with his secretary, Sir Robert Vau-Sittart, and other members of his party.

Lady Isabella Present

The wife of the British Ambassador, Lady Isabella, was present in the diplomatic gallery as the premier made his speech. She was dressed in a blue suit with white blouse and white hat and accompanying her was the premier's daughter, Miss Isabel, who wore a gray dress with almost invisible diagonal stripes and a dark red hat.

The Secretary of State's call upon Hoover in the afternoon followed the receipt of the formal invitation to attend the five-power conference to be held in London the third week in January. It had been delivered earlier in the day to Ambassador Davies in London, and simultaneously invitations were delivered to the French, Italian and Japanese embassies there.

The text will be made public tomorrow. The final draft of it is understood to have been approved by the President and the Prime Minister at Rapaun Sunday. It is considered a foregone conclusion that France, Italy and Japan will accept but whether the former two countries will not qualify their acceptance with some proviso is a matter of reasonable speculation.

Stillman Unhurt In Alaskan Camp

Banker Reported Missing Merely Delayed in Return From Hunting Trip

Anchorage, Alaska, Oct. 7 (A.P.)—James A. Stillman, New York banker, reported missing on a hunting trip, will arrive here tomorrow by boat. Pilot Joe Croson said today upon his return from a flight up the Eklavik River, where he landed and visited Stillman.

The banker had been delayed in his trip down the river. He was expected to arrive here Saturday after several weeks of hunting.

Seward, Alaska, Oct. 7 (A.P.)—An airplane search for James A. Stillman, missing New York banker, has been started in the vicinity of Anchorage. The plane also will hunt for Russell Merrill, Alaskan aviator, who has been missing for three weeks.

Stillman was due to arrive at Anchorage last Saturday from a hunting trip, but failed to return and was still missing today. It was believed, however, that he was delayed rather than lost. The search for Merrill was renewed with energy when reports were received that he had been seen near the point where the river was believed to have been forced down.

Taft Is Improved As Court Reopens

First Day of Fall Sessions Given Over to Motions; Chamber Crowded

(Associated Press.)

The historic Supreme Court room, once the Senate chamber in the days of Webster, Clay and Calhoun, was crowded yesterday as court convened after an all-summer recess.

Chief Justice Taft, who left for his vacation last spring in a wheel chair, appeared much improved. He announced the business for the day would consist of receiving motions and the admission of lawyers to practice.

After this, the court, according to long established custom, arranged to visit the White House and pay its respects to President Hoover.

The tribunal formally had placed before it 210 petitions for review. Many of these were filed during the summer and have been considered separately.

At its next meeting, a week from today, it will announce orders, receive additional motions and adjourn for another week when it will begin hearing oral arguments to various cases.

Isabel MacDonald Spends Hour Visiting School Room

Prime Minister's Daughter Slips Away From Official Doings to Investigate Model Clinic and See American Educational Methods.

(Associated Press.)

Isabel MacDonald slipped away from the pomp and ceremony of official doings yesterday to spend more than an hour at a model school and clinic for children in London.

Dropping her role of official visitor to that of investigator in the work she holds dear—the educational phase of social life—the British ambassador's daughter left the White House shortly after luncheon, accompanied only by one of the secretaries of the President's wife and an aid.

The prime minister's daughter had an engagement for tea at Woodley, the home of Mrs. Henry L. Stimson, wife of the Secretary of State, and after that the state dinner at the White House. She had not had one free moment during the morning, after returning from the President's camp with Mrs. Hoover, for it had been filled with a visit to Congress and luncheon in the executive mansion.

At the school, the Washington Child Research Center, Dr. Louise Stanley, director of the Home Economics Bureau of the Agriculture Department, met the special guests and ushered them into a room in which about 35 children play under the supervision of specially trained psychologists and teachers study from their actions the most propitious aids in training children.

The children play under the supervision of the director explained, to use the play materials set before them.

A 16-month-old girl adopted by Dr. Stanley was among the children the visitors found playing in a yard at the back of the building. The group, which included a boy named specially-concocted pupils and on a long pile, sliding on a shoot—choosing their own toys.

Upstairs, MacDonald found a psychologist giving a 3-year-old boy a mental test.

"Say mama," the psychologist directed.

Miss MacDonald smiled widely at the boy answered, "I don't. I've been taught at home to say 'mother'."

Text of Speech Delivered By MacDonald in Senate

Mr. President, and senators, I am not sure that these walls are unfamiliar to me. I have been here before, but when I was a young man, having been brought here under the wing of the late Senator Hoar, destiny never whispered to me that one day, before I was a man, I should stand as I stand here and now facing you and receiving your good will and support.

I do not know what I can say, Mr. President, but you are overburdening me with your kind and your good wishes. The only thing I feel is why have I been so long in coming over.

There are two functions that the prime minister of Great Britain fills. The first, he is the leader of his party, and he is the head of a party government. The second, and more important function, far more important than the first, is that of a statesman.

He represents his nation. He leads not only his party but the House of Commons itself. In this sense, he is a statesman. I have come here; and I have come here in the second capacity because deep down in the heart of every man there is a desire to know the truth. There is nothing that will ever remove, that the many misunderstandings, small but so deplorably effective, that have been made by the press and the public, and that do not belong to the substance of things, but belong to the appearance of things. I have come here to try to reduce misunderstandings to substance, because I know when that can be done the misunderstandings will be completely charmed away.

I have come in consequence of one great event that I believe will stand up like a monument in the history of the world. The signing of the pact of peace in Paris—the pact of peace in the construction of which America played such a magnificent and such an honorable part.

America united with France, Mr. Kellogg alongside of Mr. Hoover, and the world that renewed hope and renewed energy which is encouraging us to give our lives together with more determination than ever before and pursue the path of peace.

Fact Meant as Guiding Idea.

Where do I find the great difference that the signature of that pact has made? It is this: You signed it; we signed it; other nations signed it. They mean, when they put their names, or the names of their representatives, at the bottom of that pact, that they mean to live by it. They mean it to be a guiding idea in policy. We mean it to be a guiding idea in policy.

Speakers in our country and speakers in your country innumerable have said that the pact is a pact of peace. My friends—excuse the lapse; senators (I saw in a paper the other day that an anti-peace senator had also forgotten how precisely to address a committee in the same way that I have done). What has happened, and what has made the great change in the prospects of peace, is this—that up to now a proclamation has never been made solemnly, with all the dignity with all the authority and with all the backing that can be given when two governments and the representatives of two governments make a pact. I think, senators of the United States, that declaration can now be made.

There can be no war. Nay, more: It is absolutely impossible, if you and we do our duty in making the peace pact effective that any sea or air, can ever again come into hostile conflict.

Parity Offered Without Reserve.

Think upon that when we face many of our own problems—problems of jealousy, problems of fear, problems of the young and being and successful generation put into the hands of the old generation. They all disappear, and in the place of the fact that they have disappeared we have met together, and we have said, "What is all this bother about parity?" Parity! Take it without it, we have met together and flowing over. That was the only condition under which competitive armaments could be dropped, and we could create a public psychology which could pursue the fruitful and successful avenues of peaceful cooperation.

That is one of the results of this visit. Another result of the visit is that we have come to understand each other. Ah, senators, as long as you conduct your negotiations by correspondence over thousands of miles of sea you will never understand each other at all. In these democratic days, when heart speaks to heart as deep as the sea, when the exchange of views by the lip, sitting at two sides of a fireplace, as it was my great privilege to do this week with your President—these things names of the President and Mrs. Hoover. The dinner was given by the White House, with the name of Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, on a line below, followed by the name of the British ambassador, with Miss Isabel MacDonald underneath, the British ambassador and Lady Isabella Howard, the Secretary of State and Mrs. Stimson—and so on down the line.

All vexed questions of precedence have been smoothed out by the Vice President's waiving his sister's rank, the President's sister, Lady Isabella Howard, to dinner and Mrs. Hoover, seated by the Vice President, MacDonald was seated at the hostess's left, with Mrs. Stimson as her dinner partner. The British ambassador took in Mrs. Gann and Secretary Stimson took Miss MacDonald.

Justice McReynolds was the sole representative of the Supreme Court contingent. Chief Justice and Mrs. Taft had been invited, of course, but had sent regrets as they make no engagements for the evening.

Gathering promptly at 8 o'clock, the guests were escorted to the blue room, the floor being for the occasion, to wait the entrance of their hosts and thence they made their way into the state dining room to take their places at the great horseshoe table, which is always used for White House functions at which so large a party is present.

Members of MacDonald's party at the dinner were Lord Arnold, Sir Robert Vau-Sittart, Robert L. Craigie, once attached to the British Embassy in Washington and Thomas Jones.

The dinner was presided over by the Secretary of State and Mrs. Stimson. The Secretary of War and Mrs. Mellon, the Secretary of Navy and Mrs. Clegg, the Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Wilbur, the Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Hyde, the Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Clegg, the Secretary of Labor and Mrs. Davis.

Senate Is Represented.

In the senatorial delegation were Senator William E. Borah, chairman of the foreign relations committee of the Senate, and Mrs. Borah; Senator Joseph E. Robinson, Democratic leader; Senator and Mrs. James E. Watson, Senator Frederick Hale, chairman of the naval affairs committee, and Senator George H. Moore, while the House had representation in Representative Joseph Q. Brown, chairman of the foreign affairs committee, and Representative John Q. Tilton, the Republican floor leader.

The only members of President Coolidge's Cabinet now resident in Washington, Harry S. New and William M. Jardine, were present, with Mrs. New and Mrs. Jardine. Others in the company were: Admiral and Mrs. Charles F. Hughes, Secretary of the Navy, and Mrs. Hughes; the Undersecretary of State and Mrs. Joseph P. Cotton, the Undersecretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Ogden L. Mills, the Undersecretary of the Navy, and Mrs. William C. Wickham, William R. Castle, Jr., and Mrs. Castle, Patrick J. Hurley and Mrs. Hurley, the Undersecretary of the Navy, and Mrs. R. Rhoads and Mrs. Rhoads, J. Theodore Martin, Julius Barnes and Mrs. Barnes, Edward F. McGrady, Capt. Allen G. Campbell, and Mrs. Campbell, the President's naval and military aide.

The American Federation of Labor and Mrs. Gann, who is at present in Canada.

The table, which had the famous Dolly Madison service of silver gilt as a centerpiece, was set with a long table. Quantities of pink roses were used as decorations in low bowls, and in the center of the table, a large, low, oval centerpiece, bearing lighted tapers of a creamy tone, and epergnes—also of gold—were placed. The centerpiece was a landscape suggestive of the President and Mrs. Hoover's beloved Sierras, was banked with cydonium.

Roses and autumn flowers filled many vases in the several drawing rooms, pale pink and white and crimson in the red room. The corridor was guilottes of decorations save for the green room and white and green flower boxes and quantities of palms. But the East Room, in which the guests assembled after dinner for a musical program, was set about with great vases of pampas grass and long stemmed American Beauty roses bloomed in the two huge Sierran jars, one in the green room and one in the East Room, which were presented by the French government in McKinley's time. From the walls portraits of George and Martha Washington, newly hung in this place of honor, looked down upon the brilliant company. The portrait of George Washington in the East Room, which had been carried away to save it from destruction when the British burned the White House in those now forgotten days of strife.

The recital after dinner was given on a quaint harpsichord, installed for the occasion by Louis Richard, who is taking part in the music festival at the Library of Congress.

Decorations Are Worn.

The women present wore the loveliest of their new gowns, many of them with handsome jewels—and to a woman they had on gloves. Decorations were in order for the men, and of the women as were entitled to wear them, the bright ribbons and jewels of coveted orders adding measurably to the effect of ceremonial brilliancy.

Mrs. Hoover's gown was of periwinkle blue velvet, with bodice draped in surplice style. The skirt, very long, hung in points with a train lying 3 feet on the floor. She wore no jewels. Lady Isabella Howard's gown was of some soft orange material. She wore decorations and her jewels were diamonds.

Miss MacDonald's fresh loveliness was enhanced in a frock of white tulle with red roses. A gown of silver lace was chosen by Mrs. Edward Everett Gann. A separate train of the lace hung from the waist and the bodice was effective with touches of ombre tulle. She wore silver slippers and a jade and diamond pendant.

Mrs. William D. Mitchell wore a gown of salmon pink velvet embroidered with crystals and pearls. Mrs. Gann was wearing a Vionnet model of blue and prunella satin, which, if its length is an criterion, must be an index of the last word in Parisian modes. Also indicating the trend of winter fashion was the light blue tulle gown chosen by Mrs. Adams, its smart backward sweep giving the skirt graceful lines. Mrs. Wilbur wore white tulle slippers.

Mrs. Kellogg, wife of the former Secretary of State, was beautifully gowned in blue-green panne velvet, the skirt falling to the floor with a slight drap at the side. A brilliant picture was Mrs. Borah, who wore black velvet with decollete back, the shoulders and the shoulders with straps of onyx and crystals. Mrs. James Watson wore a black paillette gown fashioned on long lines; the sides of the skirt fell to the floor, forming separate trains. Mrs. Jardine was in chiffon, the gown shading from ombre to American beauty and white at the hem.

Yesterday afternoon Miss Isabel MacDonald was a guest at tea of Mrs. Stimson, wife of the Secretary of State, who entertained informally at Woodley, the historic estate, summer home of four Presidents, into which she and Mrs. Stimson had recently moved. It was a most informal party, with the ladies of the cabinet group and wives of State Department officials as the chief guests. Mrs. Francis White, wife of one of the Assistant Secretaries of State, poured tea.

Before the tea Miss MacDonald inspected the Child Research Center on Columbia road, where she was escorted by Mandell Sherman, Miss Ruth Sealer and a White House aide. This visit was in accordance with Mrs. MacDonald's expressed desire to see something of American methods of the naval affairs committee, and Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Clegg, the Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Wilbur, the Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Hyde, the Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Clegg, the Secretary of Labor and Mrs. Davis.

Mother and Son Hacked To Death as They Sleep

New York, Oct. 7 (A.P.)—A mother and son who chopped death with a long handled axe as they slept in their Lower West Side tenement today. Police sent on alarm for a longshoreman named Conrad Sidor, who was known in the neighborhood as John Cook. The victims, Mrs. Sidor and her 16-year-old son, John, were killed before they arose this morning.

Neighbors told police that the longshoreman had been separated from her husband for years, and that he had been seen to enter her apartment last night.

Waterbury, Me., Oct. 7 (A.P.)—The largest single gift ever received by Colby College was announced today by President Franklin W. Johnson. It is a bequest of $500,000, from Frank A. Champlin, who died recently in Los Angeles, and will be part of the permanent endowment funds of the college known as the "James Tift Champlin and Mary A. Champlin gift."

Champlin was the son of Dr. James T. Champlin, a former president of Colby.

W. C. T. U. CONVENES IN CHARLOTTEVILLE

Four-Day Program Arranged in Organization's 47th
Annual Parley.

DRY ACT IS ACCLAIMED

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlotteville, Va., Oct. 7.—An elaborate four-day program, including a number of speeches by outstanding dry workers and citizens interested in the temperance movement, business sessions, visits to local spots of historical interest, musical features and a banquet, has been arranged for the forty-seventh annual meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Virginia, which opened tonight at the First Methodist Church.

At tonight's exercises the delegates were welcomed by President Edwin A. Alderman of the University of Virginia, Virginia E. Kemp, secretary of the chamber of commerce, the Rev. Robert F. Gibson, rector of Christ Episcopal Church, and Mrs. Emma Owen, of the local W. C. T. U.

The convention will be formally called to order at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning by Mrs. Edward M. Hoge, of Lincoln, president. Mrs. Hoge was elected State president of the W. C. T. U. in 1928. For eight years prior to her election she was State recording secretary. She was made assistant recording secretary of the national organization in 1926 and recording secretary in 1927. Mrs. Hoge lives at Evergreen Home, in Loudoun County, with her husband, a minister in the Friends Church.

It is exceedingly doubtful, though, that she will be attending the convention in this mind. The federation overlooks it that it is not Mr. Ramsey.

Following a roll call of delegates by Mrs. Evelyn G. Peterson, of Pamplin, and a report from the executive committee, the business sessions of the convention will be given by Mrs. Lillian A. Shepherd, of Norfolk, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Elizabeth R. Strickler, of Roanoke, treasurer; Mrs. R. W. Lowe, of Chester, secretary of the Local Temperance Legion, and county presidents.

At the banquet on Friday night there will be a solo by Walter D. Kallenback, a student at the University of Virginia who was formerly a member of a hunting coterie in Nelson County some three or four years ago. He is majoring in English at the university. After he secures his degree from that institution he plans to enter a theological seminary.

Educator Recalls Union's Work.

In his welcome President Alderman, in commenting on the organization's "majestic undertaking in a democracy such as ours," placed the union under the control of law, said: "It is idle to deny that things are still not as they should be; that straight and lucid thinking must yet concentrate on this vast problem, and that reflection and action must go on as motion must play about it."

"I stood for prohibition in beginning and I stand for it now, and for resistance in giving it a just trial, the most stupendous social experiment ever undertaken by self-governing people."

President Alderman complimented the union for its formidable series of contributions to the welfare of human society, aid in securing protection for women and girls, the eradication of child labor, prison reform, Sabbath observance, moral education, purity in literature and art, international arbitration and world peace.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

ORGANIZED labor would now play the role of the poor and injured relative and appear unexpectedly on the scene to embarrass Mr. MacDonald, that he is up in the world.

It is going around pointing and muttering that it will not accept the invitation to have a representative present at the dinner to be given the visiting British premier in New York Thursday night. Without giving it as the reason, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, says that as early as last June the federation learned of the premier's impending visit and invited him to be the federation's guest.

Some time in October, it is said, a reply was received that owing to the fact that all of the premier's time had been allocated he could not accept the invitation.

Of course, that looks as though the premier was trying to pass the federation up. In fact, there is hardly any doubt about it.

It is true, too, that when he was over here two years ago he was just plain Mr. MacDonald and that he hobnobbed with the federation a lot. He was, in fact, its guest.

The conclusion that the federation would have one draw now is that Mr. MacDonald has got a high hat. "Can you imagine it?" the federation says, "after we entertained him the way we did and now he tries to get us to go by?"

That is the federation's attitude.

It is exceedingly doubtful, though, that the premier is anything like this in mind. What the federation overlooks is that it is not Mr. Ramsey.

MacDonald that is visiting the country now, but that it is the Premier of Great Britain.

His time, in the first place, is hardly his own. But if he really desired to visit with the federation the chances are that it could be so arranged. It is quite reasonable to suppose that he did not want to accept the federation's invitation. But the federation's attitude that he is trying to high hat it is hardly fair.

The plain truth is that there is a tendency in this country to greet the premier as the leader of the Labor party in England, and a party that has only temporary tenure.

There are indications that the disconcerting Scotchman senses this, that he sensed it even before his arrival in this country. The first night that he was here he spoke to the newspaper correspondents, and the thing that he seemed to want to emphasize was that he was not here as a leader of a party in Great Britain, but as the premier, the representative of the British people as a whole.

He wants to get over a great peace message, a gospel of good will. And when he extends this message or gospel he wants it understood that it does not come from the Labor party alone, but from the Conservative and Liberal parties of his country as well.

Without knowing the reason why he turned down the federation's invitation, a good guess would be that it is because he does not want to do anything that would suggest that he has simply as an ally in the Laborites. It is silly, at any rate, for the federation to think he is high hat.

DANGER RONS SILKS THAT PANTAGES SAW

parties at Dunes's apartment was stopped by the State, although the defense said, "We know Miss Pringle did not drink anything."

The girl admitted ownership of dresses which were low-necked and sleeveless and had short skirts, but claimed she usually attended herself in the same manner in which she appeared on the stand this morning.

Costume Was "Suggested"

The defense, however, drew an admission from her that such a costume had been "suggested" for her court appearance.

"You played the lead in the 'Prince in Hollywood,' did you not?" the defense asked, referring to her act.

"Yes, sir."

"What did you wear in the Spanish dance?"

"A long Spanish dress."

"At any occasion during the act when you more scantily clad?"

"I wore a Spanish shawl which might be considered more scanty."

"Were the undergarments more scanty?"

"The shawl was all I wore."

"You had nothing on under the shawl?"

"Oh, yes; tight."

"Did you at any time remove the shawl?"

"No, sir."

"She also denied law-making in the act, in which she danced with a male partner."

Door Was Not Locked.

At the morning session the young coed dancer underwent a severe inquisition. Geisler claimed that in obtaining admissions from her that she could not testify to some points as she had during Pantages preliminary hearings.

The attorney also won from the girl an admission that when the 24-year-old theater dancer took her to "the hotel room" he did not lock the door behind them.

Miss Pringle testified "I really don't know" when asked how long she and Pantages were in the room where the alleged attack took place. Geisler read portions of the record at the preliminary hearing showing she had testified that they were there "roughly about an hour."

In explanation the witness said: "Mr. Geisler (a defense attorney) persisted that I say how long, and Mr. Pitts told me to do the best I could. I said 'roughly about an hour.' But I really don't know how long I was there as I was unconscious part of the time."

Referring to August 10, the morning after the alleged attack, Geisler asked if the witness and her mother had met Nick Dunes, the author of the dance act in which she had sought to appear in the Pantages theaters, at a downtown office.

Denies Planning Suit.

"Yes, sir," Miss Pringle replied, "at a lawyer's named Gottlander."

Geisler dropped the line of questioning when the witness said she was not acquainted with the lawyer prior to her visit to his office. Frey, in cross-examination of the girl's mother, Mrs. Lou Irene Pringle, Geisler had sought to determine if the three had not consulted Gottlander regarding the filing of a $500,000 damage suit against Pantages.

Mrs. Pringle had emphatically denied this, saying that the lawyer had mentioned such a possibility but that she told him she was "interested only in justice for my daughter."

The week prior to August 9, Geisler queried, "did not you read in the papers that Pantages had sold his theaters for an immense sum?"

"No, sir," the girl affirmed.

"Did not Dunes tell you about the suit?"

"No, sir."

"And you never heard about it?"

GRANT WILL SPEAK AT LEAGUE MEETING

Capital Official to Address
Municipalities Group in Alexandria.

POLICE BODY TO GATHER

The Washington Post Bureau.

312 S. Washington St., Alexandria 523.

Col. U. S. Grant 3d, director of public buildings and public parks in Washington, will be one of the principal speakers at the annual convention of the League of Virginia Municipalities, which will be held here next Tuesday. His subject will be "Regional Planning," and he is recognized as a national authority on this important topic, his work in aiding the planning of the northern part of Virginia adjoining the District of Columbia having attracted special attention.

Judge R. C. Jackson, city attorney of Roanoke, will explain the plan which has been worked out in the management of the city of Roanoke, and will make suggestions as to what may be done in the other cities and towns of the State, in the light of experience of Roanoke. The rapid growth of Virginia cities, and how it has made it necessary for all of them to adopt a plan to provide for their future growth, and the treatment of these topics, Judge Jackson will be welcomed by all of the city and town officials of the State.

Mayor Fox, City Manager Hunter, Chairman Edward Stone, of the City Planning Commission, and the entire membership of the city council of Roanoke will be present to aid in discussing the Roanoke plan.

Chief of Police W. W. Campbell, of this city, is in charge of arrangements for the fourth annual conference of Virginia Police Executives Association, to be held in Alexandria on October 17 and 18, presided over by Police Chief McPherson, of Newport News.

The principal feature of the gathering will be the establishment of regional police districts, and the speaker on this subject, regarding the observation of this school in North Carolina, while Lawrence B. Dunham, director of the Bureau of Social Hygiene in New York, will talk on police schools in general, and Cornelius F. Cahalane, of the Holland Tunnel Commission, of New York City, who organized and directed the school in that State, will speak on the New York regional police schools.

Capt. W. Cameron Roberts, of Company I, 13th Infantry, Virginia National Guard, has issued the scheduled drills for each Monday night from 7:30 to 9 o'clock.

Liberty Rebekah Lodge of Odd Fellows will meet tonight in Odd Fellows Temple, North Columbus street, to conduct the Rebekah degree and also complete arrangements for a trip to Warrenton, Va., tomorrow, buses leaving at 7:30 a. m.

A large delegation from both the Rebekahs and Patriarchal Militant will go to Warrenton to attend the ninth annual convention of the Northern Virginia Odd Fellows Association, Potomac Lodge, No. 38, and Canton Alexandria Lodge, No. 1, will be headed by the Citizens Band.

George Carter, alias Streets, was given a month in jail by Judge William S. Snow in police court yesterday morning on a charge of operating a gambling game, and noted on the record that he was a member of the Citizens Band.

His bond was fixed at $10,000. According to the police, this is the third time Carter has been arrested on a similar charge.

City Manager Wallace Lawrence will be the guest of the Rotary Club today at the luncheon meeting, which will be in charge of Past President Victor C. Gaultney, of the entertainment committee.

A postponed meeting of the local Daughters of the Confederacy Chapter will be held at 8 o'clock tonight at Lee Camp Hall.

The Business and Professional Women's Club will meet this evening at 8 o'clock at the Washington Hotel, and the question of handling the annual Red Cross roll call will be considered.

The funeral of Irving Guckert, aged 17 years, who was fatally shot by Charles Richard Acton, a watchman at the greenhouse in which young Guckert's father was former owner, was held yesterday afternoon from the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry M. Guckert, in Glendale avenue.

The inquest will be held this afternoon, when the shooting will be investigated, and who is charged with murder, will be represented by Attorney Charles Henry Smith.

Child Hurlled Unhurt Through Windshield

Janette E. Gates, 16-month-old daughter of Mrs. R. L. Gates, of 304 East Capitol street, was hurled through the windshield of the automobile her mother was driving when it bumped into the rear of a car operated by William W. Rhoads, of 137 Union street, Batavia, Ill.

Mrs. Gates was said by Traffic Lieutenant H. D. Johnson to have torn away the glass around the baby's head without injury to the infant, whom she refused to have taken to Emergency Hospital for an examination.

Lynchburg Girl to Wed.

Lynchburg, Va., Oct. 7 (Special).—Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Harris have issued invitations for the marriage of their daughter, Miss Annie Scott Harris to Douglas Alexander Robertson, which is to be celebrated October 26 at Rivermont Baptist Church.

Prince Georges Grand Jury
Hears Judge W. M. Diggs
Give Charge.

BALTIMOREAN IS FINED

Judge W. Mitchell Diggs yesterday, charging the Prince Georges County grand jury at Upper Marlboro for the October term, asserted that there had been many complaints from various parts of the county about gambling. He charged the grand jury to investigate these reports. The fact that the State permitted betting at the race tracks, the judge told the jurors, should be ignored by them. Such betting, he said, was sanctioned by law, but other forms of gambling were without the law and should be investigated.

The grand jury is composed of Wilton M. West, foreman; Otto L. Gehardt, Thomas J. Garner, James H. Caswell, John L. Best, E. J. Bittling, John J. Hurley, William E. Norfold, Frank Lehman, Silas P. Newton, William H. Henson, John G. White, William V. Kagle, Perry F. Skinner, James S. Seal, William B. Morgan, Leon A. Turner, Selig Posin, Charles A. Mahoney, Carlton Gibbons, B. G. Casbarian, J. Henry Diggs and Robert B. Morse.

The Circuit Court, civil term, for October opened yesterday at Upper Marlboro with Judge Joseph C. Mattingly presiding. The first day's session was occupied with calling the docket and the hearing of routine motions.

Lynchburg, Va., Oct. 7.—The Ministerial Union here this afternoon discussed law enforcement and then adopted a resolution inviting Judge Frank P. Christian, of the Corporation Court, to appear before the union at its November meeting relative to this subject.

E. S. Campbell, 55, Dies
In Allegany Hospital

Cumberland, Md., Oct. 7.—Edward S. Campbell, 55, a steel roller, died yesterday at Allegany Hospital. He was employed for a number of years in steel mills at McKeesport, Pa., and while on a visit to relatives here, was taken ill. He was unmarried. Campbell is survived by one sister, Mrs. L. J. Billingsley, of Harrisburg, Pa. The funeral will take place tomorrow from the home of his nephew, Edward Rhind, Williams street, the Rev. W. A. Eisenberger, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, officiating. Burial will be in Rose Hill Cemetery.

Mrs. Stanley Cooley, who has had special training and who for several years has taught home economics in Maryland high schools, will have charge of the department.

Flier Returns Stray
Air Mail to Richmond

Special to The Washington Post.
Danville, Va., Oct. 7.—A large consignment of mail left from here by air yesterday for the first time in the city's history.

The mail came here from Richmond by train, either by error or because of some mechanical difficulty at the Richmond Air Field, Postmaster S. W. Collier said. Soon after its arrival a telephone call was received from Greenboro, stating that a flier was calling for the mail, which was waiting for him at the municipal airport.

John Kyle, mail pilot, took off fifteen minutes after the bags had been stowed.

Governor Wants Facts on Berwyn Constable's Hold-up of Acker Car.

REAL CULPRIT ESCAPED

Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, of Maryland, yesterday announced he will ask State police to conduct a thorough and impartial investigation into the shooting upon the car of William R. Acker, 29 years old, of 1517 Van Buren street northwest, Friday night by a Berwyn constable. At the same time young Acker declared that he intends appearing before the Prince Georges County commissioners today at Upper Marlboro to register a formal complaint.

According to Acker, who is a law student and is the son of Samuel N. Acker, patent attorney, he had been visiting Col. James B. Bentley, former principal of the Charlotte Hall Military Academy, who lives on Baltimore boulevard near Laurel, Friday night. As he left the driveway of the residence, two men in a closed car brandished a pistol at him and ordered him to halt.

Believing them to be highwaymen, he said, he attempted to escape, whereupon two shots were fired at him. The men then drove beside him and forced his car from the road. They searched the car and finding nothing ordered him to proceed, telling him, "Never mind what they were looking for."

Acker reported the incident to Judge Isaac R. Hitt at the Washington Police Court, who instituted an inquiry and learned that the car was used to Constable Walter F. Good, of Berwyn.

It later developed that the other man was Linwood Willie, a Laurel garage man. Good said he and Willie had been sent by Justice of the Peace George Phillips to inquire into a report that a car was loading liquor on the road. They found the car but the driver put it into reverse and escaped before they could turn.

When they finally got under way, Acker's car, similar to the fugitives', appeared from the bushes at the side of the road and they ordered him to stop. Good said he displayed his badge but admitted he was not in uniform.

Governor Plans Action.
The liquor had been spilled from an alleged bootleg car which had captured while being chased by Sgt. C. E. Duckworth of the State Police substation at Laurel. Duckworth arrested the driver and then instructed a garage keeper to tow the car in, which was done. Several cases had been overlooked and the motorist, who escaped, is believed to have been a passerby who noticed the cases and was helping himself to his find.

Samuel Acker said last night that he had written to Gov. Ritchie, who is a friend of the family, and asked that an investigation be ordered. He said he did not believe his letter could have reached the Governor as yet.

Gov. Ritchie said last night: "Although no formal complaint has as yet been made, it is a matter of public knowledge and I think that an investigation should be made."

"Fortunately, in Maryland, such instances are comparatively rare but they should not happen at all. I want the State police to investigate this incident impartially so I will be in a position to take the matter up with the proper county or town authorities and if the constable is really at fault, take the proper action."

"I will ask Col. Baughman (E. Austin Baughman, commissioner of motor vehicles) to have the State police make a thorough investigation of this incident."

The county commissioners have indicated their wish to have facts laid before them for investigation and action and young Acker intends appearing before the board meeting today with several witnesses. Constable Good probably will be at the hearing also.

The Cow is off the Track!

AN ANCIENT PREJUDICE HAS BEEN REMOVED

Railroads have safely passed those danger signals of prejudice which caused folks to look upon them with fear. Holding aloft the semaphore of progress AMERICAN INTELLIGENCE cleared the track and, today, millions travel in ease and security.

"toasting did it"—

Gone is that ancient prejudice against cigarettes—Progress has been made. We removed the prejudice against cigarettes when we removed harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from the tobaccos.

YEARS ago, when cigarettes were made without the aid of modern science, there originated that ancient prejudice against all cigarettes. That criticism is no longer justified. LUCKY STRIKE, the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the choicest tobacco, properly aged and skillfully blended—"It's Toasted."

"TOASTING," the most modern step in cigarette manufacture, removes from LUCKY STRIKE harmful irritants which are present in cigarettes manufactured in the old-fashioned way.

Everyone knows that heat purifies, and so "TOASTING"—LUCKY STRIKE'S extra secret process—removes harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from LUCKIES which in the old-fashioned manufacture of cigarettes cause throat irritation and coughing. Thus "TOASTING" has destroyed that ancient prejudice against cigarette smoking by men and by women.

"It's Toasted"—the phrase that describes the extra "toasting" process applied in the manufacture of Lucky Strike Cigarettes. The finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—are scientifically subjected to penetrating heat at minimum, 260°—maximum, 300°, Fahrenheit. The exact, expert regulation of such high temperatures removes impurities. More than a slogan, "It's Toasted" is recognized by millions as the most modern step in cigarette manufacture.

CUPS FOR FLOWERS
AWARDED AT SHOW

Club of Rappahannock Valley Holds Annual Exhibition in Eiks' Home.

CLASSES WELL FILLED

Special to The Washington Post.
Fredericksburg, Va., Oct. 7.—The annual flower show of the Rappahannock Valley Garden Club, held at the Eiks home here, consisted of a colorful exhibit of fall flowers to which were added displays of household decorative art. Interest on the part of the exhibitors and members was lively and all classes were well filled, with competition so keen in many instances that the judges were at considerable trouble to arrive at decisions.

The three cups offered were won by Mrs. Charles Wisner and Miss Adele Stearns. Mrs. Wisner won two, getting the Garden Club Cup for the best specimen of dahlias, with no bud showing, and the Sweepstakes Cup, given by Col. D. B. Devore for the most perfect flower in the show grown by an exhibitor. This cup must be won three times in order to become the permanent property of the holder. Miss Stearns won the President's Cup, offered for the best collection of flowers by child under 15.

Following is the list of winners of prizes:

J. Enos Ray Takes Rest in Hospital

County Democratic Leader Enters Takoma Park Sanitarium.

J. Enos Ray, Democratic leader in Prince Georges County and prominently mentioned as possible Democratic candidate for governor, is under treatment at the Takoma Park Sanitarium.

Ray has been in ill health for some time and feeling, it is said, that he was not making as rapid recovery as possible entered the sanitarium for a general examination and rest.

There is no cause for alarm as to Ray's condition. It was stated yesterday at the Prince Georges County Bank, of Hyattsville, of which institution Ray is president. The Democratic leader entered the sanitarium bank officials stated, as a means of getting the complete rest he thought desirable.

Man Near Death
After Being Shot

Another Held in Jail at Hagerstown; Fired in Defense, Claim.

Hagerstown, Md., Oct. 7.—Luther Grey, 37, wounded last night at a small settlement near Sharpsburg during an altercation with J. W. Pierce, was near death tonight in the local hospital. Pierce, who was shot in the shoulder, is in jail here charged with the shooting, which he claimed he did in self-defense, and only after Grey had wounded him.

Pierce, who lives at Shenandoah Junction, W. Va., was arrested there today by West Virginia and Maryland officers.

Lawrence Rose and J. E. Wyndham, also of Shenandoah Junction, who witnessed the shooting, are also held in jail as material witnesses.

Pierce contended that there had been an argument between him and Grey a week ago and that Grey had approached him yesterday to arrest him. Grey was a former deputy sheriff.

QUESTION OF POWER
FOR COUNTIES TOPIC

Potomac-Edison Co. Willing to Extend Lines Within Montgomery.

BOARD RULING IS FACTOR

Residents of nine Montgomery County communities appeared yesterday before the Public Service Commission at Baltimore to ask for extension of the Consolidated Gas & Electric Co. lines to those sections, and then found that the Potomac-Edison Co. of Hagerstown, was willing to give them service.

The conference between the residents and officials of the two companies and the commissioners was held because of a misunderstanding of the Potomac-Edison intentions, it was said.

J. D. Watkins, of Cedar Grove, was chairman of the committee, representing the communities of Clarksville, Lewistown, Brownsville, Henderson Corner, Woodfield, Elchison, Unity, Sunshin and Cedar Grove. The residents contended that the Potomac-Edison Co. had refused to extend their lines except at prohibitive prices.

Paul Smith, vice president and general manager of the company, pointed out to the delegation, however, that the company purchased an independent concern, has been serving the community and that the Potomac-Edison could not step in while the former company purchased power from its utility. Smith explained that the Potomac-Edison Co. has filed an application with the commission to buy the Damascus Co.

He offered three plans to the residents for the Potomac-Edison to furnish power to the communities with deposits, redeemable at the end of ten years, ranging from $55 to $75. Allowances on the deposits would be made for consumers having electrical appliances, he said. R. S. Bonnell, manager of the service department of the Gas & Electric Co. told the residents that only Unity and Sunshin came within the agreed territory to be served by the Consolidated and that that company could not extend its lines into the other seven communities.

Closing of the Olney one-room school and transferring the pupils there to the Sherwood School at Sandy Spring will be one of the matters to be acted upon by the Montgomery County Board of Education at its meeting today in Rockville.

The Olney School has only eight pupils, which is below the average allowed by the State school law and it is necessary that the school be closed and the pupils transferred, Superintendent of Schools Edwin W. Broome announced yesterday. No opposition from the parents has been encountered, he said.

The board also will discuss the progress of the school building program and will study the reports on school attendance. A number of the schools are expected to show either too many teachers for the number of children in attendance or too many children for the number of teachers and the board will make an effort to make a more equitable arrangement. The complete enrollment reports have not been sent to the board as yet and only those schools which have reported can be acted upon at this time.

The Inquiry Club of Rockville yesterday entertained the faculty of the Rockville High and Grammar schools at a reception held at the residence of Mrs. R. E. L. Smith.

Bids for the grading and landscaping of the grounds surrounding the National Guard armory at Silver Spring were opened yesterday by Lieut. Ward W. Caddington and Capt. Vinton D. Cockey, engineer. No bids were received. The bids were turned over to Capt. Cockey for study and recommendation. The engineer had estimated the cost at approximately $1,807.

Bids received were as follows: Westcott Nursery Co., $1,247.70; I. C. I. Evans, $1,370.52; W. R. McConey, Jr., $1,370.55; McConey and Ruppert, $1,370.55; DeLashmiller, $2,014.54; and Rock Creek Nurseries, $2,389.40.

The Woodside Parent-Teacher Association will hold a card party to-night, Oct. 8, at the Woodside School to defray the expenses of visual education equipment in the school. A number of bridge clubs in the Silver Spring neighborhood have signed their intention of taking tables as well as individuals.

Mrs. Henry C. McConey, president of the association, is in charge, assisted by Mrs. Victor L. Groves and Harry S. Elkins as co-chairman. Mrs. James Russell McConey is chairman. Mrs. Leo Beck, chairman of refreshment, and Mrs. Stephen James, of publicity.

FUTURE FARMERS
IN NATIONAL TEST

Four Virginia Agricultural Students to Represent State in Chicago.

BOYS RAISED OWN FARE

Richmond, Va., Oct. 7 (A.P.).—Virginia will be represented at the national judging contest at St. Louis, Mo., October 12 to 14, by youths from the future farmers of Virginia chapters in Mica High School, Caroline County; Front Royal High School, Warren County; and Strasburg High School, Shenandoah County. Walter S. Newman, supervisor of agricultural education, State Department of Education, announced here today.

Carroll McKenney and Edgar Russell, of Mica; Robert Lesch, of Front Royal; and Dorsey Carrier, of Strasburg, make up the team. L. O. Daugherty, instructor in vocational agriculture at Mica High School, will accompany the team to St. Louis as coach.

Members of the team are students of vocational agriculture in their respective schools and won the trip at the State judging contest at Blacksburg in August. Just prior to leaving for St. Louis they will assemble at Blacksburg again for last-minute practice in judging milk and dairy cattle.

Competition at St. Louis will be among members of future farmers of American organizations in 30 States. The schedule there embraces the judging of four breeds of dairy cattle, four breeds of poultry and a milk-judging contest.

Expenses of the team members and coach are being paid from the treasury of the future farmers of Virginia. This organization composed of 2,500 farm boys made up a budget last year of $2,800 without appealing for outside aid.

Plans Homes
Near EmbassyHouses by New British Headquarters Will Conform in Style.

By JEAN ELIOT.

As the new British Embassy in Massachusetts avenue takes form, plans are being completed by a little community of prominent Washingtonians who are to build homes within its shadow and overlooking its picturesque and elaborate gardens. Senator and Mrs. Frederick H. Gillett, Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Huldeker, Commander and Mrs. Paul Bastedo and Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Brooks are among those who have bought lots in W street at what is officially the back of the new embassy, but which will be its most ornamental facade.

Members of the little group are planning to build their houses after the same general design—red brick Georgian mansions, with white trimmings—and to have community gardens overlooking and possibly opening into the British Embassy garden. Mr. Brooks, who is assisting Sir Edwin Lutyens, distinguished British architect and designer of the embassy, will build his own house and possibly one or two of the others, while Mr. Nathan Wyeth is architect for several of the others. Ground will be broken immediately for at least some of the houses.

The little community will abut on Observatory circle and hard by is the big white house which was Mrs. Robert McCormack's home, with the Hungarian Legation across Massachusetts avenue. On the other side the group of houses will be bounded by the outskirts of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Biles' great estate and by a tract of land owned by Mr. Truman Bales.

Sir Edwin Lutyens, who travels about a great deal supervising the putting up of government buildings in the British Empire, is now in town by the way, as is Sir Richard Aldrich, supervising architect of the embassy. The two men were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wardman at a dinner on Saturday evening. Mrs. Sanchez-Latorre and Mr. Frederick H. Brooks completed the little party. Mr. Wardman is putting up the new embassy building, Commander and Mrs. Paul Bastedo, who propose to start work at once on their new house, have sold their residence at 2801 Wyoming avenue to Representative and Mrs. Chester Bolton, of Ohio, who recently arrived in town from Cleveland and who have been staying temporarily at the Wardman Park Hotel. They are remodeling the house and are putting on an extensive addition. Commander Bastedo is at present on duty in the office of Naval Communications at the Navy Department and he and Mrs. Bastedo are occupying Mr. and Mrs. Bates Warren's apartment at 3028 Connecticut avenue, where they will remain until their new home is in readiness.

Mrs. Bastedo's son-in-law and daughter, Ensign and Mrs. John P. Greenleaf, are at present at Coronado Beach, Calif., but Mrs. Greenleaf, who was Miss Rosemary Griffin, is expected in Washington in February, when her husband's ship comes east.

Brig. Gen. William C. Horton, retired, has been unanimously chosen president of the Washington Bachelors' Cotillion, replacing Mr. Thomas Lee, who is in California. Mr.

Returns to Capital.

Mr. Gerrit John Diekema, United States Minister to the Netherlands, who is visiting in Washington, is "playing a return engagement here," having served in Congress as Representative from a Michigan district from 1907 to 1911. Mrs. Diekema is the minister's second wife, his marriage to Miss Leona M. Belsir having taken place in 1920.

Mr. and Mrs. Diekema will return tomorrow to their home in Holland, Mich., for a short visit before sailing for their new post. They entertained informally at luncheon on Sunday at the Mayflower, where they have been staying with Senator and Mrs. Arthur H. Vandenberg and Miss Barbara Vandenberg among their guests.

Lord Crofton Marks, of London, entertained a company of twelve guests at luncheon yesterday at the Carlton, where he is staying while in Washington.

Rear Admiral and Mrs. W. W. Kimball have returned from their summer home at Paris, Me., and have opened their Washington house for the winter.

Mr. Alexander Mackay-Smith is at the Gotham, in New York, on her way home from Seal Harbor, Me.

Mr. Gordon Padgock, first secretary of the American Legation at Copenhagen, is in California.

of Draper Building
as Apartment.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Himes, who nowadays are spending more and more time at Prospect Hall, the historic estate in Maryland which they purchased some time ago, are to have a new pied-a-terre in Washington. Instead of putting up at a hotel when they are in town, they are going to take over the top floor of the Draper Building and remodel it into an apartment which will be a comfortable place for one-night stands or longer visits.

Mrs. Himes owns the Draper Building, having purchased this famous residence, long the home of the late Mr. William F. Draper, U. S. Ambassador to Italy, for the special purpose of securing the beautiful old crystal chandeliers for which it was famous and which she wanted for Prospect Hall. The building is now used for offices.

No house in Washington has had a more interesting social history than the Draper house. There the most brilliant of fancy balls was given each year for Mrs. Margaret Draper, who made her debut there and was married to Prince Andrea Boncompagni, son of an old and distinguished Roman family, which had given two Popes to the Catholic Church.

The Secretary of Labor, Mr. James J. Davis, was lost at breakfast yesterday in his home on Massachusetts avenue adjoining the new British Embassy, entertaining in compliment to his countryman, Mr. Tom Jones, who accompanied the Prime Minister of Great Britain, Mr. James Ramsay MacDonald, to this country. Others in the breakfast company were Senator Walter F. George, Senator Arthur Capper, Senator Robert M. La Follette, Mr. Jonathan Davis of Wilkes-Barre, Pa.; Mr. Edwin S. Griffiths, of Cleveland; Mr. Joseph E. Davis, Mr. Mark Sullivan, which had given two Popes to the Catholic Church.

The Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Ray Lyman Wilbur were the dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Shoup, of San Francisco, Sunday at the Mayflower. Mr. Northcutt Ely, recently appointed legal assistant to the Secretary of the Interior, and his wife, the former Miss Louise Shoup, daughter of the hosts, were also present, with Judge R. S. Lovett, chairman of the board of the Union Pacific Railway.

Miss Anne Randolph and Miss Mary Randolph have reopened their house at 1517 Nineteenth street, after having spent the summer in New England.

Mrs. Eliza London Shepard, sister of Jack London, is in Washington for a few days and is at the Willard. She was formerly head of the Women's Auxiliary of the American Legion.

Dr. C. Howard Walker, professor of architecture at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Mrs. Walker have gone to Charlottesville, where Prof. Walker will lecture at the University of Virginia. They will be in the city for a few days.

Mr. John Peleny, Counselor of the Hungarian Legation, will be the guest of honor at the Arts Club this evening. He will repeat the talk he gave at the Art Association at Newport, R. I., on "Romantic Pages of Hungarian History." The hostess will be Mrs. Sarah Stokes Halkett.

Officer of Insurance Company.

Now that former President Coolidge has so satisfactorily disposed of the question through his literary endeavors of what to do with former Presidents of the United States, it is interesting to note that Mrs. Alfred J. Brosseau, whose term expired last spring, has followed the lead of many social and club leaders and taken up a business career.

Mrs. Brosseau, whose stand for preparedness was an outstanding feature of her administration, has found a new way to aid that cause by becoming active vice president of the insurance company.

She received training for a business career when she served first as D. A. R. national treasurer, handling millions of dollars a year for that organization, and then as its president general, directing the manifold financial affairs of the organization. The only other woman on the board of directors and trustees of the company is another D. A. R. leader, Mrs. William Sherman Walker, vice president general of the society, from Seattle, Wash.

Mrs. Brosseau, it is said, will not confine her activities alone to the life insurance field, but has accepted the associate editorship of a journal of national opinion, to be launched in Washington early in the New Year. In addition to her editorial duties, Mrs. Brosseau will write extensively for the new publication.

Mrs. Joseph Bradley and daughter, Miss Mary Pariah Bradley, are at Rosemont Farm on the Rockville pike, after a summer in Europe. They will take possession of their Washington apartment about November 1 in time for the debutante affairs. Mrs. Bradley will present her daughter to society this season.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Taylor have issued invitations for the wedding of their daughter, Miss Nancy Taylor, to Mr. John Martin Kennedy, on Saturday, October 19, at 4 o'clock, at the Mayflower.

MERGER OF TWO BIG SOCIETIES FORECAST

Dentists and Physicians Will Unite, Predicts President Morgan.

CONVENTION UNDER WAY

Amalgamation of the American Dental Association and the American Medical Association, two of the largest professional organizations in the world, was predicted by Dr. William G. Morgan, of Washington, recently elected president of the medical association, at a luncheon given by the District Dental Society to the delegates at the Mayflower Hotel yesterday. The dental association and affiliated organizations are holding a convention in the city this week with 18,000 in attendance.

"I predict that at no distant date there will be one national society of the healing arts in which all qualified dentists and physicians will be members in equal standing," said Dr. Morgan. "Speed this day, for it will redound to the betterment of both professions and be of far-reaching benefit to the public at large."

This prophecy, coming from so eminent a member of the medical profession, was received with much interest and apparent approbation by the delegates.

Expansion Is Forecast.

In paying tribute to the dental profession, Dr. Morgan said: "Your influence, great as it is at the present time, must nevertheless be further extended. It is stated upon reliable authority that not more than one-third of the entire population of the United States comes under the care of the dental profession. An important step looking toward the broadening of your field of activity is the work which the dentists are doing in the public schools throughout the land."

Closer cooperation and affiliation between the medical and dental professions, Dr. Morgan declared, has been brought about through a mutual understanding and realization that they are interdependent. The strides in medical progress, he said, have been paralleled step by step by the research and discoveries of dentistry.

Dr. William A. White, superintendent of the Government Hospital for the Insane, St. Elizabeths, the other speaker at the luncheon, asserted that few persons realize the importance and growth of the dental profession. Dentistry, he remarked, had its beginning when life was at its start, and has continued until now it has become an exact science. It is related to other sciences, such as paleontology, medicine, anthropology and psychiatry.

Far-Reaching in Effect.

From the standpoint of the individual, he said, dentistry goes to the root of many of the evils of the stands between happiness and unhappiness.

"Unfortunate commercialism" that is being foisted on the dental profession was deplored early in the day at a meeting of the house of delegates of the association in the Mayflower Hotel.

The judicial council reported to the delegates that several large dental organizations have violated or have been tempted to violate the spirit of the code of ethics by giving testimonials regarding dental preparations, which are, in turn, being foisted on the public.

Dr. G. Walter Dittmar, of Chicago, head of the judicial council, reported that another aspect of commercialism was being injected into the profession by the subtle introduction of advertising mediums into affairs of the societies. He referred to the lending of orchestras to societies by manufacturing concerns.

Question of Ethics Raised.

When the orchestra is loaned to the society, he said, the society generally reciprocates the courtesy by advertising its orchestra. In this manner, he said, the indorsement of the product is obtained by the business men. He questioned whether this was ethical.

The council recommended that the code of ethics be revised to declare it unethical for dentists or dental societies to give testimonials directly or indirectly concerning the supposed virtue of preparations such as remedies, vaccines, dentifrices, or other material claiming radical cure or prevention of disease by their use.

second motorboat turned sharply and headed for a barge berthed alongside the bank. Dwyer turned his boat in pursuit.

The pursued craft reached the barge in safety, and the dark shadows of men scrambling ashore were seen. As the customs boat came near, a volley of pistol shots, with the deeper rattle of a machine gun, cracked overhead. Dwyer and his crew stormed ahead and anguished the fire with their own pistols.

But their quarry was too swift and all were seen to disappear in a waiting car. Dwyer took the motor boat in tow and prepared to return to the barge office.

While turning in midstream, a third gray craft aboat by. Dwyer and his men again halted, and vainly fired after the craft.

The captured boat, when taken to the barge office, was found loaded with 300 cases of excellent whiskey, valued unofficially at $30,000. Despite their dingy and innocent appearance, she had two engines, almost enough for her to fly.

While preparations were being made to salvage the sunken craft, special agents were busy along the Potomac River looking for the one that got away.

ington Auditorium. Manufacturers, numbering 150, had displays. Clinics will be conducted in the auditorium throughout the week.

Motion pictures showing the various aspects of tooth treatment and care during childhood were shown in the balcony of the auditorium yesterday morning and afternoon.

More than 1,100 women attended the luncheon in the ballroom of the Mayflower Hotel yesterday. The Ladies' Auxiliary of the District of Columbia Dental Society was hostess to the visiting women of the American Dental Association. Bridge was played after the luncheon.

The first day of the convention was ended with an informal dance at the Mayflower last night.

Today the first general meeting of the association will be held in the ballroom of the hotel. Dr. James S. Montgomery, chairman of the House of Representatives will give the invocation.

Willbur to Speak Tonight.

It will be followed by addresses of welcome by Commissioner Proctor I. Dougherty and Dr. Sterling V. Mead, of the District Dental Society. Dr. Harry V. Nelson, vice president of the association, will respond. Secretary of Interior Willbur, who was scheduled to make an address at the morning meeting, will speak at the evening session instead.

Radio programs will be broadcast through local stations in the morning and evening. A luncheon for the past president of the association will be held in the Jefferson room of the Mayflower Hotel at noon today.

Vice President Curtis and Secretary Willbur will address the general meeting tonight in Continental Memorial Hall. Maritime W. Ireland, Army surgeon general and Charles E. Riggs, naval dental surgeon, will also speak.

The Tuesday session will be concluded with a fireworks display tonight at the Washington Monument.

FOUR WOMEN PUT ON FALL CASE JURY

Negro—George E. Parker, a dining car worker—remained.

The Government expects the opening arguments to be concluded today in time to permit it to call its first witnesses, probably a Government employee who will be asked to tell of the leasing of the Elk Hills Oil Reserve to Edward L. Doheny.

Fail is alleged by the Government to have received $100,000 from Doheny for this lease. He maintained it was a loan and asked dismissal of charges against him on grounds that through the acquittal of Doheny and himself in 1926 on charges of conspiring to defraud the Government, he was being placed in double jeopardy.

Justice William Hitz overruled this contention after court opened yesterday and work of selecting the jury started at once.

Owen J. Roberts, special Government prosecutor, and Frank J. Hogan, chief of defense counsel, quizzed 34 members of two panels before the dozen jurors were found satisfactory.

After the jury was sworn, Justice Hitz announced, on his own initiative, the jury would be locked up until their verdict is rendered.

The list of jurors follows: Miss Virginia Cooper, 33; Mrs. Helen M. Jarboe, 36; Thomas C. Adkins, 45; Daniel Welsbach, 31; George E. Parker, 44; Festus E. Bowman, 29; Mrs. Hazel A. Fuller, 35; Mrs. Ollie O. Walker, 59; Thomas E. Norris, 28; Charles R. Nichols, 31; Harvey L. Taylor, 27; Barney O. Wells, 23.

Detroit Kidnapers Get 30 to 50 Years

Victim Near Death When Found Chained to Bed Without Food.

Detroit, Oct. 7 (A.P.).—Sentences of from 30 to 50 years each in a State Penitentiary were given Frank Hoher and Edward Wilds today after a Recorder's Court jury had pronounced them guilty of the kidnaping of Matthew Holdreith, Jr., 24, September 20.

Wilds and Hoher were captured by police after a gun battle when the officers sought to arrest them for driving a stolen taxicab. They had almost $4,000 in their possession, the remainder of the ransom of $5,000 they had received from Matthew Holdreith, sr., father of the missing youth.

The next day young Holdreith was found in an apartment chained to a bed. He had been held six days without food or water. Arrest of his captors prevented his release by them after the ransom had been paid.

Malt Sirup Sale Brings Dry Arrest

Under Cover Agent Says Grocer Also Furnished Beer Directions.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 7 (A.P.).—W. H. Burnhart, proprietor of a grocery, was arrested today on a Federal bench warrant charging violation of the prohibition law in the sale of a can of malt sirup to an undercover agent of the prohibition department. Burnhart was released on $2,000 bond for appearance next week.

It was brought out that the agent, in making the purchase, asked for ingredients and directions for making beer. The malt and information requested were said to have been supplied.

This is the first case of its kind in Chicago and it is understood it will be made a test.

What happens to SUGAR in the body?

Sugar in the diet aids in consuming fats instead of letting the body absorb them and take on weight

The muscles are the fire-box of the body. It is in the muscles that sugar is burned to supply the body with heat and energy. To be sure, it is not the original sugar that is being consumed but the inverted or digested form of it.

Of all the fuels consumed in the body, sugar is the most easily burned and absorbed. Consider this when you are tempted to avoid sugar on the grounds that it will make you fat.

Fat in the body is completely burned only when sugar or starch is also being burned. This stage of digestion prevents acidosis. Thus the importance of sugar in the diet is readily seen. Not only does it supply heat and energy but it helps consume the fat taken into the system.

Desserts such as puddings, ice cream and custards, containing fresh or condensed milk, belong in every normal diet. Jellies and jams should also be eaten. Certainly candies or cakes at the end of a meal are an ideal dessert in themselves.

Sugar should also be used in the diet as a seasoning for the foods which are essential for good health. Vegetables which are flat or unappetizing take on a delightful flavor when they have been prepared with a dash of sugar. Sprinkle sugar on cereals or grapefruit and you will enjoy them much more. Most foods are more delicious and nourishing with sugar. The Sugar Institute.

The Seven-Dials Mystery

By AGATHA CHRISTIE

"What you want is a kindly burglar friend to show you the ropes." "I do, Bunde. I do. And unfortunately I haven't got one. I thought perhaps your bright brain might grapple successfully with the problem. But I suppose I shall have to fall back upon Sir Oswald as usual. He'll be getting some funny ideas in his head soon about me—first a blue-nosed automatic—and now skeleton keys. He'll think I've joined the criminal classes."

"Jimmy?" said Bunde.

"Yes?"

"Look here—be careful, won't you? I mean if Sir Oswald finds you nosing around with skeleton keys—well, I should think he could be very unpleasant when he likes."

"Young man of pleasing appearance in the dock! All right, I'll be careful. Pongo's the fellow I'm really frightened of. He sneaks around so on those flat feet of his. You never hear him coming. And he always did have a genius for poking his nose in where he wasn't wanted. But trust to the boy here."

"Well I wish Lorraine and I were going to be there to look after you."

"Thank you, nurse. As a matter of fact, though, I have a scheme—"

"Yes?"

"Do you think you and Lorraine might have a convenient car breakdown near Letherbury tomorrow morning? It's not so very far from you is it?"

"Forty miles. That's nothing."

"I thought it wouldn't be—to you! Don't kill Lorraine, though. I'm rather fond of Lorraine. All right, then—somewhere round about quarter to half past 12."

"So that they invite us to lunch?"

"That's the idea. I say, Bunde, I ran into that girl Socks yesterday and what do you think of her? O'Rourke is going to be down there this weekend."

Another Suspect.

"Jimmy, do you think he—"

"Well—suspect every one, you know. That's what they say. He's a wild lad and daring as they make them. I wouldn't put it past him to run a secret society. He and the countess might be in this together. He was out in Hungary last year."

"But he could pinch the formula any time."

"That's just what he couldn't. He'd have to do it under circumstances where he couldn't be suspected. But the retreat up the ivy and into the town bed—well, that would be rather neat. Now for instructions. After a few polite notes to Lady Coote, you and Lorraine are to get hold of Pongo and O'Rourke by hook or by crook and keep them occupied till lunch time. See? It is not to be difficult for a couple of beautiful girls like you."

"You're using the best butter, I see."

"A plain statement of fact."

"Well, at any rate, your instructions are duly noted. Do you want to talk to Lorraine now?"

Bunde passed over the receiver and tactfully left the room.

Nocturnal Adventure.

Jimmy Theisger arrived at Letherbury on a sunny autumn afternoon and was greeted affectionately by Lady Coote and with cold dislike by Sir Oswald. Aware of the keen matchmaking eye of Lady Coote upon him, Jimmy took pains to make himself extremely agreeable to Socks Davenport. O'Rourke was there in excellent spirits. He was inclined to be official and secretive about the mysterious events at the Abbey, about which Socks catechized him freely, but his official reticence took a novel form: namely, that of entreating the tale of events in such a fantastic manner that nobody could possibly guess what the truth might have been.

"Four masked men with revolvers? Is that really so?" demanded Socks severely.

"Ah! I'm remembering now that there was the round half dozen of them to hold me down and force the stuff down my throat. Sure, and I thought it was poison, and I done for entirely."

"And what was stolen, or what did they try to steal?"

"What else but the crown jewels of Russia that were brought to Mr. Lomax secretly to deposit in the Bank of England."

"What a bloody liar you are," said Socks without emotion.

"A liar? If And the jewels brought over by airplane with my best friend as pilot. This is a secret history I'm telling you, Socks. Will you ask Jimmy Theisger there if you don't believe me? Not that I'd be putting any trust in what he'd say."

"Is it true," said Socks, "that George Lomax came down without his false teeth? That's what I want to know."

A Subscription.

"There were two revolvers," said Lady Coote. "Nasty things. I saw them myself. It's a wonder this poor boy wasn't killed."

"Oh, I was born to be hanged," said Jimmy.

"I hear that there was a Russian countess there of subtle beauty," said Socks. "And that she vamped Bill."

"Some of the things she said about Budapest were too dreadful," said Lady Coote. "I shall never forget them. Oswald, we must send a subscription."

Sir Oswald grunted.

"I'll make a note of it, Lady Coote," said Rupert Bateman.

"Thank you, Mr. Bateman. I feel one ought to do something as a thank offering. I can't imagine how Sir Oswald escaped being shot—letting alone die of pneumonia."

"Don't be foolish, Maria," said Sir Oswald.

"I've always had a horror of cat burglars," said Lady Coote.

"Think of having the luck to meet one face to face! How thrilling!" murmured Socks.

"Don't you believe it?" said Jimmy. "It's damned painful." And he patted his right arm gingerly.

"How is the poor arm?" inquired Lady Coote.

"Oh, pretty well all right now. But it's been the most confounded nuisance having to do everything with the left hand. I'm no good whatever with it."

"Every child should be brought up to be ambidextrous," said Sir Oswald.

"Oh!" said Socks, somewhat out of her depth. "Is that like seals?"

"Wow, amphibious!" said Mr. Bateman. "Ambidextrous means using either hand equally well."

"Oh!" said Socks, looking at Sir Oswald with respect. "Can you?"

"Certainly. I can write with either hand."

"But not with both at once?"

"That would not be practical," said Sir Oswald shortly.

"No," said Socks thoughtfully. "I suppose that would be a bit too subtle."

"It would be a grand thing now in a government department," observed Mr. O'Rourke, "if one could keep the right hand from knowing what the left hand was doing!"

"Can you use both hands?"

"No, indeed. I'm the most right-handed person that ever was."

"But you deal cards with your left hand," said the observant Bateman. "I noticed the other night."

"Oh, but that's different entirely," said Mr. O'Rourke easily.

A group with a somber note pealed out and every one went upstairs to dress for dinner.

After dinner Sir Oswald and Lady Coote, Mr. Bateman and Mr. O'Rourke played bridge and Jimmy passed a flirtatious evening with Socks. The last words Jimmy heard as he retreated up the staircase that night were Sir Oswald saying to his wife:

"You'll never make a bridge player, Maria."

And her reply:

"I know, dear. So you always say. You owe Mr. O'Rourke another pound, Oswald. That's right."

It was some two hours later that Jimmy went noiselessly (or so he hoped) down the stairs. He made one brief visit to the dining room and then found his way to Sir Oswald's study. There, after listening intently for a minute or two, he set to work. Most of the drawers of the desk were locked, but a curiously shaped bit of wire in Jimmy's hand soon saw to that. One by one the drawers yielded to his manipulations. Drawers by drawers he sorted through, methodically, being careful to replace everything in the same order. Once or twice he stopped to listen, fancying he heard some distant sound. But he remained undisturbed.

The last drawer was locked through Jimmy's now known could have known had he been paying attention—many interesting details relating to steel; but he had found nothing of what he wanted—a reference to Herr Eberhard's invention or anything that could give him a clue to the identity of the mysterious No. 7.

He had, perhaps, hardly hoped that he would. It was an off-chance and he had taken it—but he had not expected much result—except by sheer luck.

He tested the drawers to make sure that he had unlocked them securely. He knew that a sly fellow might be making minute observation and glanced around the room to make sure that he had left no incriminating trace of his presence.

"That's that," he muttered to himself softly. "Nothing there. Well, perhaps I'll have better luck tomorrow morning—if the girls only play up."

He came out of the study, closing the door behind him and locking it. For a moment he thought he heard a sound quite near him, but decided he had been mistaken. He felt his way noiselessly along the great hall. Just enough light came from the high vaulted windows to enable him to pick his way without stumbling into anything.

Again he heard a soft sound—he heard it quite certainly this time and without the possibility of making a mistake. He was not alone in the hall. Some one else was there, moving as stealthily as was. His heart beat suddenly very fast.

With a sudden spring he jumped to the electric switch and turned on the lights. The sudden glare made him blink—but he saw plainly enough. Not 4 feet away stood Rupert Bateman.

MARION MEN RELATE STORIES OF KILLINGS

Labor Leaders Call Off Mass
Meeting While Hearing Lasts.

MINISTERS ASK INQUIRY

Marion, N. C., Oct. 7.—The parade of witnesses that began last week, accusing Sheriff O. F. Adkins and his deputies of shooting in the riot at the Marion Manufacturing Co.'s plant Wednesday which cost five lives, today continued to pass before Judge W. H. Harding, who is conducting the State's investigation.

In the meantime labor leaders decided to have no strikers' mass meeting in Marion as long as Judge Harding is sitting as a committing magistrate on orders from Gov. Gardner is conducting his investigation.

Gov. Gardner, in a statement issued late today, declared he had studied the request of a Marion labor delegation that he appoint a committee to investigate labor troubles there, but had reached the conclusion that he has no authority of law to make the investigations and can not delegate any committee to do so.

At Greensboro, the ministerial association, representing ministers from every denomination in the city, passed resolutions calling on various national church organizations to conduct an impartial investigation into industrial conditions, particularly at Marion and Gastonia.

The only witness who appeared before Judge Harding today who was not a striker or openly sympathetic with the strikers was W. L. Hicklin, Asheville newspaper reporter, who witnessed the fight.

Hicklin said the first volley of shots came from the mill gate where the sheriff's deputies were stationed. He said the strikers were not armed but many of them carried sticks and stones, and appeared to be "very determined men."

The reporter said he ran when the shots began to whiz around him and that as he ran bullets whizzed off a place of concrete wall before and behind him. Finally, he testified, he got behind a hedge and then crawled into a ditch with one of the wounded.

Spurgeon Bradley, a striker, testified that he had watched the shooting, believing the sheriff's men were using blanks. He said he saw seven of the deputy sheriffs fire their guns. Bradley said that Sheriff Adkins and John Jonas, one of the men who later died from wounds received in the fight, were scuffling when Sam Vickers, another of those slain, was shot down some distance away. This testimony was in direct conflict with that of Saturday in which strikers testified that Adkins had shot Vickers while holding him away with his left hand.

Man on Construction Work Suffers Injury

Fred Burroughs, 34 years old, of the Young Men's Christian Association building, Eighteenth and G streets northwest, was seriously hurt yesterday in an industrial accident. While at work at a building under construction at Thirteenth and B streets southwest, Burroughs was struck by a piece of iron which fell from the structure. Taken to Emergency Hospital, he was treated for a lacerated scalp and possible fracture of the skull.

OFFICER DEAD

CAPT. JOHN JACOB GILBERT.

Capt. J. J. Gilbert, Retired, 84, Dies

Former Officer of Geodetic Survey Entered
Service in 1864.

Capt. John Jacob Gilbert, retired officer of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey, died yesterday morning at his residence in the Troquois Apartments.

Capt. Gilbert was born September 4, 1845, at Lewinsville, Fairfax County, Va. He was educated at Wilton Academy and Williams College, Massachusetts. He entered the Coast and Geodetic Survey in 1864 and retired April 1, 1921. During the 57 years of his service Capt. Gilbert was active in surveys made in the Pacific Northwest, and as commander of the survey steamer Pathfinder, on surveys in Alaska and the Philippines. He served as chief of the division of hydrography and topography for more than ten years.

Funeral services are to be announced later.

ARTHUR I. WELLAND RITES.

Funeral Will Be Held Today With Burial at Oak Hill.

Funeral services for Arthur I. Welland, 63 years old, of Rhode Island avenue, near North Capitol street, who ended his life by hanging himself Sunday following three months of ill health, will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon from the Sergeant funeral home, at 1011 Seventh street northwest. Burial will be in Oak Hill Cemetery.

Denial was made yesterday by Mrs. Alice Welland, the widow, that she and her husband had quarreled prior to his death. An account of the suicide in The Post yesterday, based on reports of police of the Eighth Precinct, stated that Mr. Welland had quarreled with his wife over some property they jointly owned. Mrs. Welland denied this yesterday and declared that her husband was impelled toward committing suicide because of poor health.

Air Mail Will Be Topic.

Walter F. Brown, Postmaster General will address the Advertising Club of Washington on "The Air Mail" at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon at the National Press Club.

'MA' KENNEDY WINS HEART BALM SUIT

Letters Requesting Money
Result in Dismissal of Preacher's Action.

BLACKMAIL IS ALLEGED

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 7 (A.P.).—Two letters, both requesting for money, resulted today in the dismissal of the $50,000 breach of promise suit brought by the Rev. H. H. Clark against Mrs. Minnie E. Kennedy, mother of Alcee Temple McPherson, evangelist.

Superior Judge J. T. Ronald, at the opening of court, granted defense motion for nonsuit, throwing the case out of court. The former minister had sought damages from Mrs. Kennedy, charging she failed to marry him as promised and that it left him "destitute" and "morally unfit" to carry on his work.

Clark was the only material witness during the entire trial. When he had finished his case the motion for dismissal was made. The court's decision made it unnecessary for Mrs. Kennedy to take the stand in her own defense.

Judge Ronald said the nonsuit rested entirely upon the construction put on two letters which Clark admitted writing to Mrs. Kennedy and her companion, Miss Kay Burbeck. The defense charged the letters were blackmail but counsel for the former minister said they were appeals for financial help from a desperate and heart-broken man.

Referring to the letter to Miss Burbeck, the court said: "In view of this letter in which Clark told Miss Burbeck of his acquaintance with the defendant, a thing which she had specifically told him not to do, she was entirely justified in not marrying him."

Gordon McGauvran, attorney for Clark, said he was considering filing an appeal to the Supreme Court.

Clark, who was on the witness stand most of last week, had testified that he met Mrs. Kennedy here and knew her as "Mrs. Clark." He said she had promised to marry him and provide him with a new church, but left him without carrying out the promises and he later learned she was Mrs. Kennedy.

During the trial the defense introduced letters which Clark had written to Mrs. Kennedy and to Mrs. McPherson asking for money. In one letter, which Clark admitted writing, he asked for a $200 loan with a promise to "fade out of the picture" if given the money. It was these letters which Mrs. Kennedy's attorney charged were "blackmail" that the Ronald referred to in his decision.

Be Buried in Oak Hill

This Afternoon.

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary Radford Coyle, 81 years old, a resident of Washington for many years, who died Sunday night, will be held at the chapel in Oak Hill Cemetery at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon. Burial will be in the family plot in that cemetery.

Mrs. Coyle was born in Morristown, N. J., the oldest daughter of Admiral William Radford and Mary Lovell Radford. Admiral Radford was in charge of the Washington Navy Yard during the Grant and Johnson administrations. The commandant's home at the yard, and also his home in Georgetown, were the centers of social life for three generations.

Mrs. Coyle is survived by a sister, Mme. de Melanor; two brothers, S. Kearney Radford, of Washington, and O. Reginald Radford, of Bethlehem, Pa.; two daughters, Mrs. Horace G. Torbert and Mrs. Francis E. Matthes, of Washington. A surviving son, William Radford Coyle, is a representative in Congress from Bethlehem, Pa., and another son, Randolph Coyle, is a major of U. S. Marines in Haiti. Mrs. Coyle lived in Washington with her daughter, Mrs. Matthes.

southeast fourteen years ago, and later moved to the Pennsylvania avenue address. He was a member of the Board of Trade. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Lillian Cross; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. Jefferson Cross and a sister, Mrs. Ada J. Vealand.

NEVER wait to see if a headache will "wear off." Why suffer when there's Bayer Aspirin? The millions of men and women who use it in increasing quantities every year prove that it does relieve such pain. The medical profession pronounces it without effect on the heart, so use it as often as it can spare you any pain. Every druggist always has genuine Bayer Aspirin for the prompt relief of a headache, colds, neuralgia, lumbago, etc. Familiarize yourself with the proven directions in every package.

ASPIRIN
Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacturers of Monheim-on-the-Rhine, Germany.

CONOCO ETHYL

gives you not one but

big advantages

FIRST, as its base Conoco Ethyl has Conoco, the extra miles motor fuel—the economy gasoline—the outstanding favorite of motorists who keep an accurate check of their mileage costs.

Then under expert supervision, Conoco gasoline is blended in the proper admixture with Ethyl brand of Anti-Knock Compound—that miraculous fluid developed in the great research laboratories of General Motors.

The result—a double purpose motor fuel! You get not only the extra miles which are packed into Conoco, but you are assured of smooth knockless motor operation at all speeds—less gear shifting, a minimum of wear and tear and high compression performance from any motor.

Ethyl gasoline made the new high compression motors possible. It is the essential fuel for them. But remember that all Ethyl gasoline is not Conoco Ethyl. To get high compression performance plus extra miles you must fill only at the sign of Conoco's Red Triangle.

VISIT

the new Crane Exhibit Rooms for Washington

An interesting display of beautiful design in plumbing fixtures and a striking visualization of the progress in comfort-giving and labor-saving appliances

New and completely equipped Crane
Exhibit Rooms are now open to you at 1018 Connecticut Avenue, N. W.

Placing on public view splendid examples of the new and more beautiful designs for plumbing fixtures, the recently developed fixtures in color, and new art-designs for fittings, these rooms are full of suggestions for greater beauty, comfort, and time-saving in bathroom, kitchen, and laundry.

Here house-planners, architects, realtors, builders, decorators, contractors, can keep in touch with the many recent developments and obtain information not only on equipment, but on decoration and arrangement in the modern mode.

They can also familiarize themselves with the growing array of mechanical improvements; automatic gas water heaters that need almost no attention from one year to another; water softeners that are this century's wonderfully improved version of the old unsatisfactory cistern; farm water systems that have placed all the benefits of plumbing at the service of isolated dwellings.

Crane representatives, experienced and helpful to the public and contractors alike, are on duty and ready to give you information and assistance in their power.

You are cordially invited to pay an early visit and to return as often as you please for further study and additional information. Because Crane materials are sold only through responsible plumbing contractors, you will not be asked to buy. When, in building or remodeling, you do wish to purchase, it is well to come in with your contractor and let him advise you as you select the materials that he will install.

DEMAND DEPOSITS AND FEWER BORROWINGS ARE REPORTED.

RAIL INCOME REVEALED

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Advances for the week of $147,000 in loans and investments and $223,000,000 in net demand deposits and decreases of $4,000,000 in time deposits and $16,000,000 in borrowings from Federal Reserve banks were revealed yesterday in the Federal Reserve Board's condition statement of weekly reported member banks in the leading cities as of October 2.

Loans on securities increased $103,000,000 at all reporting banks and all other loans gained $78,000,000. Net demand deposits also gained $223,000,000 at all reporting banks and time deposits received $4,000,000. Principal changes in borrowings from Federal Reserve banks for the week included a decrease of $85,000,000 in the New York City district, a decrease of $40,000,000 in the Chicago district, $60,000,000 in that of San Francisco district and $6,000,000 in the Kansas City district.

RAILROAD INCOME REVEALED.

Class I railroads in the first eight months this year had a net operating income of $827,734,976, which was at the annual rate of return of 5.50 per cent on their property investment according to reports just filed by the carriers with the Bureau of Railway Economics and made public by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The net operating income for the eight months of 1928 their net railway operating income was $868,081,631, or 4.62 per cent on their property investment.

Property investment is the value of road and equipment as shown by the books of the railroads, including materials, supplies and equipment. The net railway operating income is what is left after the payment of operating expenses, taxes and equipment rentals, but before interest and other charges are paid. This compilation, as to earnings for the eight months of 1929, compares with $827,734,976 for the same period last year, or an increase of 5.50 per cent. Operating expenses for the first eight months of the year amounted to $8,031,026,516, compared with $7,970,477,461 for the same period one year ago or an increase of 2.1 per cent.

Class I railroads in the first eight months of 1929 paid $270,724,604 in taxes, compared with $260,908,394 for the same period last year. The month of August alone on the tax bill of class I railroads amounted to $38,566,027, an increase of $3,163,184 over the previous year. Twelve class I railroads operated at a loss in the first eight months of 1929, of which three were in the Eastern, three in the Southern and six in the Western district.

The Washington Stock Exchange opened the week with the figure of the bond aggregate at $2,700 million, an $18,000,000 recession from Saturday's, and the stock turnover 141 shares, a decline of 301.

Capital Traction stock was the most active, 50 shares transferring at 87 1/2, last sale price. Lincoln National bank rose 15 points, 100 shares at $420, and Biggs National bank came out 2 1/2 points higher than the previous report. Twelve shares changing hands at 610. On the next sale of 10 shares, the stock receded 3 points, or to 1/2 point below last week's last sale price.

LANSTON MONOTYPE FIRM.

Lanston Monotype firm at 130, 25 shares moving at the figure and sales of 20 shares of Merchants Transfer & Storage preferred were made at 1 1/2-point discount. The firm at 1 1/2-point discount preferred sold to the extent of 15 shares at fractional loss from 107 1/2. There was a 5-share sale of Potomac Electric Power Co. preferred at 111 1/2, and a 6-share sale of the 5 1/2 per cent preferred at 105 1/2, fractional recessions.

BALTIMORE MARKS.

N. & W. Earns $30 a Share.

The current year will be the fourth in succession for Norfolk & Western to show over $30 a share on common stock. It is estimated in official quarters that profits will approximate $24 a share on common stock this year, but the administration is usually more conservative. Other views run as high as from $25 to $28 a share, but would approximate the high mark of $25.94 attained in 1926. In 1928 the figure was $21.25 and in 1927, $41.33.

MAN BORROWS AFTER MARRIAGE.

What class of people go to the small town company to borrow? And why? The butcher, the baker, the candlestick maker, so to speak, according to Leslie C. Harrison, president of Household Finance Corporation. He states, "we recently analyzed 100,000 cases, we have 235,000 names in our books for active loans and these identified themselves as employed in 1,700 occupations. We analyzed 6,000 cases from another viewpoint and those getting loans gave us 197 distinct reasons for needing money."

MANGEL STORES CORP.

Mangel Stores Corp. reports sales of $606,365 for September, an increase of 15.38 per cent over the month of August, and $5,701,000 for the first nine months of this year, as compared with $5,750,626 for the same period last year, an increase of 31.73 per cent.

Curb Review

New York, Oct. 7 (A.P.).—The recovery in curb prices, which started last Saturday, was extended today under the stimulus of easier money rates, but sufficient new power of business proper to give the market the appearance of irregularity throughout most of the session. Public utilities, oils and specialties led the advance, gains of 1 to 10 points being scattered over fairly steady, with large advances in a few ordinarily inactive specialties.

Trading was only moderately heavy in volume, the day's sales running just above 1,500,000 shares. Extension of the curb ticker service to several Southwestern and Southern cities today brought in some new business from those points.

Public utilities, which were rather inactive in the selling movement early last week, rebounded in brisk fashion. Commonwealth Edison jumped 35 points on a few sales. Standard Power & Light, Middle West Utilities and American & Foreign Power warrants showed net gains of more than 10 points. Electric Bond & Share advanced 2 1/2 points higher. Cities Service moved up 1 1/2 points to another new high record, at 83 1/2, while the day's gain of 2 points, led the advance in the gas stocks.

OILS.

Oils were in brisk demand at rising prices. Gulf, Humble, Lion and Standard Oils Indiana, Kansas and Kentucky closed 1 to 3 points higher. The recent falling off in crude oil production has brought fresh buying into the oil group.

MAINE & MIDLAND.

The new $60,000,000 holding company, which was officially announced today, sold between 73 and 77 1/2, as contrasted with the offering price of 60. The stock previously had sold as high as 88 in trading on the exchange.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Oct. 7 (A.P.).—Staggered by a new shift increase of the United States wheat visible supply, wheat values underwent a sharp decline in the last few days. The price downturn came after a sharp jump in wheat quotations at a recent time when wheat prices had advanced a few cents.

Chicago closing prices for wheat were: No. 1 hard, 1 1/2; No. 2 hard, 1 1/4; No. 3 hard, 1 1/4; No. 4 hard, 1 1/4; No. 5 hard, 1 1/4; No. 6 hard, 1 1/4; No. 7 hard, 1 1/4; No. 8 hard, 1 1/4; No. 9 hard, 1 1/4; ROOT AND EARNSHAW PROBABLE PITCHING SELECTIONS BEFORE CAPACITY CROWD AT CHICAGO the home-town-ers and the mild in difference of bias New York during seven of the past nine series is bold relief against the hysterical devotion of Chicagoans and Philadelphians to their teams.

Series Again Becomes Civic Occasion.

Once again the world series is the nature of a civic undertaking; the competing cities, the same situation.

It was Killefer who persuaded Alexander to sign a Cardinal contract after Manager Joe McCarthy, of the Cubs, had asked for waivers on veteran pitcher for alleged misconduct. Killefer is known as one of the greatest handlers of pitchers in baseball ever has known and his sug-

BUSINESS AND EMERGENCY LINER MEETING TODAY

Stenogs Due For Hard Fight

Both Elevens to Have Regular Line-ups Available.

Return of Montague Within Week Good News to Eastern.

LYNN S. WOODWORTH'S Business High School team will be facing a real proposition this afternoon when it lines up against H. P. Banham's Emerson Eleven on the Monument. The fact that it shows half the fight against the prep men that it showed in its final workout yesterday it should cause the team from the 1 street institute no little trouble before the afternoon is over.

Undiscouraged by their failure to take the measure of Banham's prep last Friday for the first time in six years, the Stenogs are rather proud of having been able to hold their own to such a low score.

When they return to the city it is expected that no less than four former college stars appeared in the evening line-up. Besides boasting of an all-star player from Michigan, the team also had a last-year letter man from the University of Virginia on its team. Every man in the line-up was over 6 feet and a couple of pounders adorned the back field.

When one actually gets a look at Woodworth's line-up, it is not so large after all. The line-up will be the same as the one which the team used in its last game, with the exception of the line-up, which has quit school to go to work. Either Taylor, a sophomore, or Longest will be in that position.

Some encouraging news was learned from the Eastern High School yesterday when it was announced that Jim Montague, tackle who was injured in the Loyola game last Friday, would be back in harness in a week's time. Montague's shoulder was dislocated in the fray Friday, and for a time it was feared he would be lost to the squad for the remainder of the year. However, the faculty line-up underwent an examination yesterday and the sawbone promised to have him on the field a week from today, although he will miss the benefit game Friday.

Although winning their opening game Friday by a 7-0 score, "Hap" Cardella's Tech squad looks none too impressive in its daily workouts on the monument. The men are still trying to learn the fundamentals of the game, on which they have been drilled since the start of the season.

Coach Ben Ahern at Western High developed a passer and punter Friday's opening game or the Red and White Eleven will be out if luck when it faces the Alexandria High School. Although a flock of good football players are going through their paces daily at the school across the creek, none are eligible, and Ahern has yet to find a man among his eligibles who can kick and pass.

Three Navy Golfers Prep for Tournament

Special to The Washington Post. Annapolis, Md., Oct. 7.—The Navy is training its big guns on Annapolis today, as its crack trio of golfers, Commanders Popham and Hedges, and Lieut. Holes, are getting in trim for the invitation tournament scheduled for Saturday.

Popham, fresh from his triumph at the Marine Club, Washington, where his teammates were also in the money, looked upon as a favorite to place. The tournament being a handicap, a handicap play affair, will put the Navy in steady nerves and consistent play in this the Navy trio should show its advantage.

The Navy will be pitted against the best of Washington and Baltimore have in offer. Entries already in for the tournament show that the competition will be the best according to Lieut. T. Speer, chairman of the Annapolis Roads golf committee.

The Denby Cup, the big trophy of the tournament, given by Col. Charles Denby, brother of the former Navy secretary, as well as the many other prizes, will be on display at the clubhouse.

Army-Navy Football Move Again Failure

(Associated Press.) Secretary Good said today that efforts to arrange a post-season football game between West Point and Annapolis for this season had failed.

He added, however, that efforts were being made by himself and Secretary Adams to get the service institutions to resume athletic relations on a basis suitable to them.

He said he and Adams had discussed calling the superintendent of the institutions together to see if they could not work out a satisfactory plan.

Secretary Good jokingly added that the Navy "wanted parity."

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 8.

The last games to be played at Detroit by Washington this season resulted in a victory and a tie for the Senators. The score of the first game was 4 to 1, the second was 1 to 1 when it was called in the fifth on account of darkness. The attendance for the double-header was 85.

Business High School won its opening game against the Tanglewood 16 to 0. Keiser and Hart starred for Business and Paake and Carroll for Tanglewood.

Washington is being overrun with boys who are attending the Brigade Convention of the United Boys of America here for the next four days.

The flower and vegetable show of the public schools is being held at the Franklin School.

Today was Germany's Day at the World's Fair. Ambassador Von Sternburg read the message of good will from the Kaiser.

The Oldest Inhabitants Association appointed a committee to erect on the banks of the Rock Creek a memorial to Robert Fulton, the inventor of the steamboat.

A "model" saloon has been established at Henry, Md. by the Davis Coal & Coke Co. The saloon will run on the reform plan and will not open until after 8 o'clock in the morning.
